Albert H. Crosby
Hartford, Conn.

PREFACE

This genealogical line is probably authentic back to the year 1440. Prior to that date the ancestry is somewhat nebulous, but, if one cares to speculate, there are records of many Crosbys from which to choose.

The home of the early Crosbys was Holme-on-Spalding-Moor, in York County, England. They were yeomen, and their descendants have no claim to a family coat-of-arms, although there are various Crosby coats-of-arms. Enough is to their credit that the Crosbys were, as a rule, men of substance, integrity and strong religious beliefs.

In this compilation, published primarily for my family and relatives, there is a very limited amount of original research.

For information regarding the early Crosbys, acknowledgment is made to the publication in 1914, by Eleanor Davis Crosby, entitled "Simon Crosby the Emigrant," and to the records of the First Church in Brewster, Massachusetts.

SOUTH CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
Centerville, Mass.

Referring, perhaps, to Jesse and his sons is a familiar rhyme, variously rendered:

Below the hill there was a mill,
For want of water it stood still,
And when it turned, it made no noise,
Because 'twas built by the Crosby boys.

NOTES

In Centerville, Cape Cod, some have claimed that Jesse Crosby, born 1732/3 and listed as number 10 in this record, was son of Ebenezer Crosby, 2d, of Yarmouth, Massachusetts, and grandson of Ebenezer Crosby who was born March 28, 1675. This may be discounted by the fact that Ebenezer Crosby, 2d, married Mehitable Baker on January 10, 1734, two years after the birth of Jesse.

Descendants of Jesse Crosby may qualify for membership in the Sons of the American Revolution, or Daughters of the American Revolution, in right of his recorded enlistment as a private in Captain Lovell's Company, Freeman's Regiment. In October, 1777, he served twenty-eight days on a secret expedition to Tiverton, Rhode Island, as well as a few days during a threatened raid by the British at Falmouth, Massachusetts.

Descendants of Clara Jane (Hutchings) Crosby may qualify in the Sons, or Daughters, of the American Revolution through her great grandfather, Samuel Sawyer, or Sayer, who served as Captain in the Revolutionary War. By permission the following is printed from data gathered by the Media Research Bureau: "The name Crosby, of Danish origin, signifies 'The Place of the Cross' and is variously spelled de (of) Crosby, Crossebye, Crossby, Crosseby, Crosbie, Crosbi, Crossbie, Crossbee, Crossbye, Crosby, Crosbee, Crosbey, Crossbeye, Crossbey, Crossbeye.

Scattered through the early records of England are occasional references to notables bearing the name. In 1205 Odo de Crosby, of Yorkshire, is mentioned as agent for the King. In the reign of Henry III (about 1220), Simon de Crosseby is referred to as a property holder at Crosseby, in Lancashire, and this Simon is generally considered the common ancestor of the New England branch of the family.

Other early records of the family in England include those of Galfredus, or Geoffrey de Crosseby, of Lincolnshire, in 1273 and 1274; those of John de Crosseby, King's clerk, who was in Westmoreland County in 1316, in Essex and Hertford about 1318, and in York in 1324; those of Thomas de Crosseby, of Lancashire, in 1318; those of Gilbert de Crosseby, 'Custos Feodorum' of Edward, Prince of Wales, in 1349; those of John de Crosseby, who journeyed into Scotland in 1358; those of Sir John Crosby, Knight, Alderman of London and Lord of the Manor of Hanworth, who died before 1575, leaving a son named John, of London, who had a son John, the father, about the year 1410, of another Sir John Crosby; those of Thomas, Robertus and Walterus de Crosseby, of Yorkshire, in 1415; and those of Richard Crosby, of Coventry, in 1427."
